The boys in both troops will recruit more members after the opening of school next Monday. A series of activities is being planned to hold the interest of the boys through the winter months, with the Knights of Columbus Hall as a meeting place.

MARYVILLE MAN'S SHIP IS RAIDED

ROSS A. Mc REYNOLDS TO SAIL ON KING ALEXANDER

SEIZE LIQUOR AND DRUGS

May Cause Change in Plans of Young Student, Who Will Teach in Greece

New York, Sept. 9—A raid on the Greek steamship King Alexander by a party of prohibition agents this morning resulted in a battle with the crew, at the end of which one man was dead, one dying and eight wounded.

The dead man is Prohibition Agent Fitzpatrick, who shot himself. The cause given was that he became mentally unbalanced as a result of the fight. All the wounded were members of the crew.

Liquor valued at $50,000 and drugs valued at $75,000 were confiscated from the ship's cargo. The ship was anchored in the harbor when boarded by the raiding party.

Ross A. McReynolds, son of Mrs. E H. McReynolds, 522 East Seventh Street, left Maryville yesterday for New York. He intended to sail on the King Alexander for Saloniki, Greece, on September 14.

Mr. McReynolds will teach in the Saloniki Agricultural and Industrial Institute, which is conducted by the American Board of Missions. He will teach in the Institute for three years, and during the summer vacations he will take advantage of the opportunities afforded for a study of the problems of the Near East and of the Balkans. He expects to travel extensively through Europe during his stay, and will return to the United States by the Far Eastern route for a study of the problems of the Orient.

Mr. McReynolds is a graduate of the Maryville High School and a former student in the State Teachers College. He attended the University of Missouri, from which he was graduated with the degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Master of Arts. He has also done graduate work at the University of Chicago. While at the University of Missouri he was elected to Phi Beta Kappa, national honorary literary society.

Whether the prohibition raid on the King Alexander this morning, in which a quantity of liquor and drugs was confisicated, will cause a change in Mr. McReynolds' sailing arrangements is not known. Maryville lawyers were unable to say whether the sailing of the ship will be interfered with by the United States government.

A Correction.

An item appearing in Wednesday's Democrat-Forum stated that Mr. and Mrs. Lee Roberts of Burlington Junction attended the celebration in Maryville that day. This item was phoned in from the Burlington Junction office. Mr. Roberts today informed us that he is not married and that evidently some one was playing a joke on him.

The Democrat-Forum cannot condemn too strongly such use of its columns. It is an offense punishable by law, but we prefer to rely upon the good judgment and sense of fair play of our readers and friends not to indulge in a practice so obviously unjust to both newspaper and the persons involved.

SEES A CHANCE TO STRAIGHTEN CORNER

TOWNSHIP BOARD MAY USE FUNDS FOR CITY STREETS.

PROVIDED IN NEW LAW

Dr. Jesse Miller Author of Measure Which Allows More Just Distribution of Money Collected.

Under a new law which was passed by the special session of the legislature, the township board may spend township road money in improving or repairing any street in Maryville, according to Burt Rowley, chairman of the board. This measure was proposed by Representative Jesse Miller of this city.

Maryville formerly received from the township board money for street improvements within the city but the supreme court in an opinion a few years ago held it was unconstitutional. While a greater part of the township taxes came from Maryville yet not a cent of it has been spent here since the supreme court opinion, the money being used on roads outside of Maryville in this township.

Under the new law it may be possible to fix several streets in the city that are needing attention. The rounding of the corner on West Fourth street and Normal Avenue, the main entrance to the College, is very badly needed and since the city has been unable to go ahead with the work on account of finances, the township board can have the work done. It is thought this matter will be brought up before the board at its next meeting.

The new section reads as follows:

"Provided, that the part of said special road and bridge tax arising from and paid property not situated in any road district, special or otherwise, shall be placed to the order of the township road and bridge fund and be used in the construction and maintenance of roads and may, in the discretion of the township board, be used in improving or repairing any street in any incorporated city or village in the township, if said street shall form a part of a continuous highway of said township leading through such city or village, if said street shall form a part of a continuous highway of said township leading through such city or village."

TEACHERS ARRIVE FOR TERM OPENING

WILL BE AT COLLEGE TUESDAY TO MEET STUDENTS

NEW MUSIC HEAD HERE

Indications Point to Increased Enrollment—A Steady Demand for Rooms.

Faculty members and students are beginning to arrive for the fall term of the State Teachers College, which opens next Tuesday. President Uel W. Lamkin has consistently refused to make any advance predictions on enrollment, but all indications point to an increased attendance over last year.

Charles R. Gardner, who will be head of the Conservatory of Music, is in Maryville and is superintending the work of preparing the classrooms in the Conservatory building for the term opening. He and his assistants will be at the Conservatory all day Tuesday to receive the new students.

Mr. Gardner, who is ranked as one of the leading public school music teachers of the country, will hold a conference with President Lamkin on his return from Clinton on enlarging the scope of the music department. He hopes to secure the cooperation of music lovers not only in the school, but in the community to develop a municipal chorus and to make Maryville known as the musical center of the state. He will make his home at the J. S. Shinabargar residence, 321 West First street.

Miss Anna M. Painter, a new instructor in the English department, has also arrived in Maryville and will make her home at the J. F. Montgomery, 609 West Third Street. Russell E. Sprong, director of athletics, and Mrs. Sprong, Miss Kathryn Franken, an instructor in the education department, and W. W. Stanfield, head of the department of agriculture, are other recent arrivals among the faculty.

A. J. Cauffield, instructor in geography, has been given a leave of absence and will not return for the fall term. Among the faculty members remained in Maryville most of the summer are Dean George H. Colbert, Mrs. A. R. Perrin, dean of women; T. H. Cook, history; H. A. Foster, history; E. W. Glenn, manual arts; C. A. Hawkins, Latin; Miss Katherine Heiwig, mathematics; Miss Carrie Hopkins, English and fine arts; Fred Keller, education; C. D. Kutschinski, violin; C. C. Leeson, biology; Harry A. Miller, reading and public speaking; C. E. Wells, history and Spanish.

Other instructors are expected to return tomorrow and Sunday. They will hold a general faculty meeting Monday and will confer with students at the College when enrollment begins Tuesday.

The Chamber of Commerce, which has a directory of rooms for students, has had a steady call for rooms during the past week from students and parents who have made arrangements for the coming term and then returned home to await the time for enrollment.

The College, together with the rest of the city, is now being supplied with pure water by the city water plant. Tests made by bacteriologists have shown the water to be free of any harmless germs whatever, and a recent visit of Engineer E. E. Harper resulted in elimination of the cloudy condition of the water, which is now clear and sparkling.

FARMERS' UNION TO HAVE BIG PICNIC AT HOPKINS

Fine Stock and Farm Produce Will Be Exhibited During First Week in October.

A representative of the different locals of the Farmers Union met with C. E. Donlin and other business men of Hopkins Wednesday, discussing plans relative to a big picnic to be put on in Hopkins the first week in October. Representative men of Hopkins will meet a committee from the different locals perhaps next Monday night when the matter will be discussed and definite arrangement made. At this meeting it will be decided whether to make it a one, two or three days affair.

Besides an exhibition of fine horses cattle and hogs as well as corn and all kinds of farm products, there will be plenty of amusement provided, including ball games, foot racing, etc. There will also be a band, a merry-go-round and other concessions, nothing being left undone to make it a fall festival that will be enjoyed by both the old and the young.

The fact that the farmers and town people are to join hands in putting on the picnic means that it is sure to be a success and that the crowd attending will be one of the largest, if not the largest in the town's history.—Hopkins Journal.

HOPKINS MAN BACKS TOP BUGGY AGAINST AUTOMOBILE

F. A. Kenyon, on Way to New York Behind Team of Ponies, Has Reached Ohio.

F. A. Kenyon, who left Hopkins a month ago, driving two ponies hitched to a top buggy, with New York state as his objective point, has had nothing but the best of luck as will be seen by the following letter to the Hopkins Journal:

New London, O. Aug. 31, 1921

Editor Journal:

As I agreed to often write and let you know what sort of a trip I've had I will proceed to tell you of my journey. I arrived at New London, Ohio, at my son's four weeks from the day I started. I had a splendid trip, no storms or accidents of any kind which was quite wonderful. It seems rather good to get away from the public eye and rest for everyone was very curious. "Where are you going?" "Who are you?" "Where did you come from?" "Are you swapping?" are some of the questions they asked several times a day when on the road. My horses are as fat and sleek as moles and feeling just as ambitious as the day I left. The fellow who suggested my horses would not stand the trip had bats in the belfry. They are far more reliable than the tin Lizzies, too. Autos honk me off the road, go sailing past then in a mile or two I pass them in the ditch. "Such are the joys of motoring," I'm told. I stole two dogs, but one was worthless and the other was worse than worthless. I shook them both. In Ohio and Iowa I got lost several times. Their roads are not so well posted as in Illinois and Indiana. In several towns I had to threaten to call the police to scare the horse swappers away. I said "I'm going somewhere and will never get there if I stop to swap." I will write when I arrive at Oneouta. Have made about a thousand miles in the time I've been gone. Won't leave here for two weeks at least.

Respectfully,
F. A. KENYON.

MISSOURI WAR LEADERS TO BE IN KANSAS CITY

Pershing, Crowder and Coontz Will Attend American Legion Convention Beginning Oct. 31.

Kansas City, Sept. 9.—There distinguished war leaders will return to their Missouri homes as a result of the holding of the Third Annual National Convention of the American Legion in Kansas City, October 31, November 1 and 2. The home-coming celebrations will be held by General John J. Pershing, Maj.-Gen. Enoch H. Crowder and Rear Admiral R. E. Coontz, Chief of Naval Operations, all native Missourians. Gen. Pershing was born in Laclede, Gen. Crowder in Edinburg and Real Admiral Coontz in Hannibal.

"I shall be able to be in Kansas City at the time of the convention," Admiral Coontz wrote to the convention distinguished visitors' committee. "It happens to come at the proper time before Congress starts up hard and before the Limitation of Armaments Conference meets. I am very anxious indeed to visit Missouri at the time in question; particularly as I was unable to get out there in August at the Centennial Celebration."

A recent letter from General Pershing conveys the information that he will attend one days' session of the convention. It is probable that the former commander of the American Expeditionary Force will be in Kansas City on the first day.

"If I am in the United States, I shall certainly be present at the convention," Gen. Crowder has written.

Arrangements are being made to hold special ceremonies of welcome by American Legion post members who attend the convention from the native cities of the distinguished guests.

WON'T TAKE HIGHWAY BOARD POST, HYDE SAYS

Theodore Gary Refuses Appointment —Governor Won't Meddle in Wing-Proctor Row.

Jefferson City, Sept. 9.—Gov. Hyde returned yesterday from an absence of nearly a week spent at his home in Trenton. No appointments on the State Highway Commission will be announced until late in October, he says. Theodore Gary of Kansas City, mentioned as chairman of the commission, will not accept the place, he announces.

The governor said today that the one vacancy on the State Tax Commission would be filled by a St. Louis man, but he was "unable to say" who it would be.

Discussing the vacancy on the State Public Service Commission October 1, by the resignation of Edward Flad, the governor said there was no lack of applicants, but the names of the man selected would not be made public until next week.

Hyde declared he had no knowledge of the row between State Industrial Commissioner Mrs. Alice Curtice Moyer-Wing and Senator David M. Proctor of Kansas City over the rejection of recommendation by Proctor.

"Mrs. Wing sent me copies of the letters she gave to the newspapers," he said. "She submitted her list of appointments to me and they were all approved. They were her own selection. It does not seem to me to be a matter that calls for any interference on my part."

The governor will confer with Col. A. T. Nelson and Warden Sam Hill of the prison board, discussing the investigation into the smuggling of drugs at the penitentiary. Hyde said that it had "blown up," but that further and more drastic steps would be outlined at tonight's conference to eradicate the traffic.

ONLY 580 FARMS LESS THAN 3 ACRES

THERE ARE 649 FARMS WITH AN AREA OF 1,000 ACRES AND OVER.

INTENSE FARMING PAYS

Of the 263,004 Farms in State Preferred Size Seems to Be From 100 to 174 Acres.

By A. T. Edmonston

Jefferson City, Mo., Sept. 9.—That intensive farming on a purely scientific basis has not attained the importance in Missouri that it will some day when the density of population has reached the point that farm land is so valuable that every acre must be tilled to its limit to reap an adequate reward is illustrated by the fact that there are only 580 farms in the state with an acre of less than three acres, announces advanced information from the 1921 Red Book of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, given publicity today by Commissioner William H. Lewis; and neither do Missouri farms run to the other extreme the same bulletin avers, since there are only 649 farms in the state with an area of 1,000 acres and over.

Further information on the same subject, divulged by the Bureau of Labor bulletin, all the result of research work conducted by Supervisor of Statistics, A. T. Edmonston, is that:

"Of the 263,004 farms in Missouri ranging in area from under three acres to 1,000 acres and over, the prevailing and preferred size seems to be from 100 to 174, there being 79,507 in the state which come under this classification. Then there are 67,446 which have an acreage ranging from 50 to 99 acres, and 41,106 from 20 to 49 acres.

"The following compilation giving the area of Missouri farms in 1921 as compared with 1911 is of interest since it indicates that farms of less than three acres, and those of more than 175 acres substantially increased in number in ten years. This fact also applies to farms of 1,000 acres and over:

Number of Farms, by Size, 1921 and 1911.

Intense Scientific Farming Pays

The Bureau of Labor Statistics bulletin goes on to declare that "Of the 580 Missouri farms with an area of less than three acres 51 are on the out skirts of the city of St. Louis but within the limits of that commercial center, and 49 in St. Louis county, a fact which indicates that the owners of these small areas through intense and scientific farming are making their investments and labor pay by producing early vegetables, and marketing chickens, eggs, butter and milk when the prices for such commodities are at the peak. Jackson county also has 51 such small farms all within easy hauling distance of Kansas City, Buchanan county with St. Joseph as its chief consuming market has 42 farms of less than three acres each, and 288 ranging in size three to nine acres. Jasper county with Joplin, Carthage, Webb City and other mining and manufacturing cities within its border has 31 farms averaging less than three acres each, and 157 which range from three to nine acres. Greene county with Springfield as its chief consuming market has only 11 farms of less than three acres each; 244 which range from three to nine acres, and only one farm of 1,000 acres and more. Marion county with the city of Hannibal consuming its agricultural products, has three three-acre farms, 38 with from three to nine acres, and two with an area of not less than 1,000 acres.

"Missouri counties with over ten farms averaging 1,000 acres and over, each are: Atchison, 15; Bates, 14; Benton, 11; Camden, 11; Grundy, 11; Howell, 14; Jackson, 12; Linn, 10; New Madrid, 18; Oregon, Phelps, 21; St. Clair, 11; Shannon, 11; Sullivan, 12; Washington, 10; Taney, 11; and Vernon, 10.

"St. Louis county has only one farm officially registered as having an area of 1,000 acres and over. St. Louis city has none in this category for the substantial reason that land is too valuable there to devote any extensive area to agriculture. The largest farm there belong to the classification 260 to 400 acres, there being one of that size , and two classified as having areas ranging from 100 to 174 acres. Then there are nine farms included under the classification of "50 to 90 acres: "83, three to nine acres; 62, nine to nineteen acres; and 36, twenty to forth acres.

"Counties which have no farms, 1,000 acres and over," are: Andrew, Caldwell, Moniteau, Platte, Randolph, and Scott. Counties not already enumerated have from one to nine farms which come under the big "1,000 acres or over", classification.

Millicent Ends a Feud

By DOROTHY WHITCOMB

(©, 1921, Western Newspaper Union.)

The night before my father died he called me to his bedside. He had become conscious at the end, after three months of speechless stupor, just as the doctor had anticipated.

"Milly," he whispered, "when I am dead you will have enough to live upon. I want you to promise never to sell the old homestead."

"I promise, my dear," I answered, and that was all. He seemed to have called himself back to life with one wild effort in order to get my promise. He died at four o'clock in the morning.

"Of course, you'll sell now, Miss Street," my friends told me, and they laughed when I announced my intention of refusing. So did Mr. James' lawyer when he called on me a few days later.

"Well, young lady," he said, setting down his hat and staring hard at me, "you can guess what I have called to see you about, I suppose?"

"Perhaps," I answered enigmatically.

"You know that for seven years Mr. James has been trying to get the Street homestead. The assessed value of your property is, I believe, four thousand dollars. Mr. James offers you fifteen thousand."

"He rose from four thousand to fifteen thousand in seven years," I answered. "But I wouldn't sell it for a hundred thousand. In fact, I won't sell it at all. My father might have sold once, although the homestead was naturally dear to him. But when Mr. James began his persecutions—"

"That was old Mr. James," interrupted the lawyer, frowning. "Mr. Cyprian James had, I admit, a vindictive nature. Mr. Harold James, however, is a fine gentleman. Mr. James is coming South to live, and wants your place for a shooting box."

"No," I answered. "It isn't for sale."

One morning a few days later I saw that a series of boards had been put up all around my little property in the night. I went down to look at them. There were ten in all, and each bore in large letters the words: "TRESPASSERS WILL BE PROSECUTED."

The road led from the garden through a mile of James land to Hicksville. A man was waiting at the gate of the garden, and I hadn't set foot outside before he came hurriedly forward.

"I must ask you to go back," he said, taking off his hat respectfully. He seemed a gentleman, although he was dressed like a tramp. "You may not know that this is a private road. I must request that you step back upon your own territory."

"Indeed, I shall do no such thing," I replied angrily. "I utterly defy you and your old road."

I returned from town about an hour later.

I was very lonely. I had written to a girl chum to come down from Richmond and stay with me until I had decided upon my plans, but I had never contemplated being marooned. What if that Wicked Harold James really meant to let me starve to death there? I wasn't too joyful when I awoke next morning.

I looked out of the window. Close to the gate, tied to a short stake by a very long chain, was the most savage-looking bull I had ever seen. He had his head down, and as I approached the garden gate he gave one bellow and began to paw the ground furiously.

I tried to compute the length of that chain.

I saw that he could not reach the garden.

Then I took heart again. The chain was too short. I could pass the bull with several feet to spare.

I felt so infuriated that, as I passed the snorting monster, I snapped my fingers at it. Next instant, with a roar, the creature leaped at me. And then—well, for the first time in my life I fainted.

I could not have been unconscious long, for when I opened my eyes the bull was feeding a short distance away, as peacefully as though it had never had thoughts of violence toward me. And the gamekeeper was bending over me, a look of agonized reproach upon his face.

"I didn't mean to do it—indeed I didn't," he was saying over and over again. Won't you forgive me?"

"I suppose you have to earn your wages." I answered curtly.

"Are you—engaged?" inquired the man, paling.

"What business is it of yours?" I demanded.

"Because," he said, "I am Harold James."

"I might have guessed it from your actions," I answered.

And then Mr. Harold James suddenly caught hold of my hands.

"Millicent," he said pleadingly, don't you remember how we used to be sweethearts when we were at school together and how you promised some day to marry me? I've been crazy over you ever since. Millicent, may I have a chance to win you?"

I could not help laughing.

"You may call on me next Wednesday evening, after my friend, Miss Jones, gets here," I answered.

Well, the Street homestead is still standing, and it will never be sold as long as I am alive. But it is used now mainly as a shooting box, for the James mansion is so much more convenient and comfortable.

The Scrap Book

ONLY MADE MATTERS WORSE

Mrs. Brown Rather Overdid the Thing In Her Effort to Discourage Borrowing Neighbor.

Mrs. Brown was tired of the borrowing propensities of her neighbor, Mrs. Smith. First it was some household utensil she wanted, then some small article of grocery. The other day a knock came to Mrs. Brown's door. It was Mrs. Smith's little girl.

"Please, mother wants to know," she said, "if you will lend her some pepper and the big flat-iron."

Mrs. Brown was determined to stop her neighbor's borrowing. "Tell your mother I've got other fish to fry," she snapped, and the little girl went away.

She was back in a few minutes, however, with a dish and the usual request.

"Please, mother wants to know if you'll lend her some of the fried fish."

"GARBAGE" ONCE WAS STEW

Word Has Changed Its Meaning Very Considerably Since Its Use in the Fifteenth Century.

At one time in the world's history garbage was the name of a dish and meant a stew. A Fifteenth-century recipe for making "garbage" was as follows: "Take fairs garbage, chiken hedes, feet, livers and gysers (gizzards) and wash them clene. Caste them in a faire pott and caste fresh broth of beef, powder or pepper, canell, cloves, maces, parsley and sauge minced small. Then take bread, steep it in the same broth, let boyle enow, caste thereto powder, ginger, verjuice, sal and a little safron and serve it forth." Another of the old dishes was called the "black broth of Lacedemon." A classic author has written: "What the ingredients of this sable composition where we cannot exactly determine. Dr. Lister in Apicius gives word to his belief that it was made of hogs' blood. It could not have been a very alluring mess, since a citizen of Sybaris having tasted it declared it was no longer a matter of astonishment with him why the Spartans were so fearless of death, since anyone in his senses would rather die than exist on such execrable food."

Youthful Artist.

The world's youngest artist is Helen Williams aged one and one-half years, of South Wales. Two of her studies drawn from memory were exhibited at the 32nd annual exhibition of the Royal Drawing society at the Guildhall Art gallery, London. Helen sits up in her tiny cot cooing daily with a pencil and drawing board, sketching the things that adorn her nursery. Her exhibition pictures are an outline of a cat with a ribbon bow, and a running gamecock.

THESE DOCTORS

"What's the doctor treating you for?"

"Various things. Seems to think he's treating me for a swollen fortune."

Cow Enjoyed Hen's Eggs.

An Alberta (Canada) farmer found his hen's eggs were disappearing. One morning he went on guard in the henhouse to catch the thief. After about an hour's wait the cow came in, went to a nest and ate an egg. She emptied every nest, including one in which a hen was sitting. She took the hen by the feathers and put it on the ground while she ate the egg.

Peculiar Derangement.

In a will contest at Fitchburg, Mass., a doctor testified that when he attended a woman during her last illness, he found dogs, cats, kittens, geese, ducks, hens and chickens walking about the room, and upon her death bed, and that she refused medical treatment, and died of cancer.

Seal Slept With Hens.

Going to the fowl house in the early morning, an inhabitant of Rhyl, North Wales, was surprised to find, sleeping peacefully among the chickens a seal three and a half feet long. The fowls were apparently not disturbed by the unusual visitor.

"Colorful" Lodge Meeting.

The rainbow hues were represented at a Masonic lodge in Buffalo, when five visiting Canadians were introduced as Messrs. Black, White, Green, Brown and Dr. Grey. One was redheaded.

Cautious.

"Are you superstitious?"

"Not a bit."

"But you refused to walk under that ladder."

"I know. I had paint splashed on my new hat that way once."

PICKERING.

(O. G. Null)

Leslie Moore and family of Mozingo Valley neighborhood attended the Iowa State Fair at Des Moines last week. They report the exhibits as up to the usual standard but the crowd not so large as in previous years.

Vern Fakes returned last Sunday from a four weeks' visit with his brother, E. N. Fakes, at Eureka, California.

Jas. L. Neal, W. W. Rickman, Ira Thompson and Elmer Hanna returned last Saturday from Springfield, Mo., where they attended the state convention of Missouri Farm Bureau Clubs as delegates from the Pickering Farm Club. They made the trip in a car and had an enjoyable time though they encountered considerable mud southeast of Kansas City on the return trip.

W. B. Hanna, a former resident of this vicinity, but who has for the past six years, resided at Rock Island, Tex., visited with his sons, Byron, Edmond and Elmer over last Sunday, returning to his home Monday. Mr. Hanna has recently exchanged his Texas farm for a forty acre farm adjoining Chanute, Kansas. He will not occupy it at present, however, but expects to move to Maryville about the middle of October to spend the winter with Mrs. Hanna's mother, Mrs. E. A. Baker.

A number of Pickering folks drove to Clarinda last Sunday to spend the day, but were forced to return early in the afternoon by the threatening aspect of the weather. Among those who were in the party were: Mr. and Mrs. Ed Shreve, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Spurgin, Mr. and Mrs. Omer Strong and daughter, Helen, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Houston and family.

The Pickering school began last Monday with thirty-seven in the high school twenty-four of whom are not residents of the Pickering district. A person would judge from this record that the rural districts surrounding Pickering need a high school as much as does the town. It is an example of the need of the County Unit Law in order that the maintainence of the high school might be more equitably divided among those interested.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fakes entertained at dinner last Sunday in honor of the seventy-seventh birthday of Mr. Fakes' father, Elwood Fakes. The families of his children and grand children who were present were Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Pierpoint of Maryville, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Pierpoint of Maryville, Miss Blanche Pierpoint, of Maryville, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Gray, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Fakes, M. F. Fakes, Caples Wilson and Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Fakes, all of Pickering.

W. A. Chapman, pastor of the Christian church has been engaged this week in a protracted meeting at Bedison. Mr. Orlo Lincoln is assisting him by taking charge of the music.

Dale Green of Xenia neighborhood made a sale last week and disposed of his stock and farming utensils. He expects to move with his family next week to Hannibal, Mo., where he will have a position with a wholesale dry goods house as traveling salesman.

Sunday school at 10 a. m. and preaching service at 11 a. m. as usual next Sunday at the Christian church. There will be no evening service as the pastor will preach at Bedison that evening. Every one invited to attend the forenoon service.

A number of persons from here are planning to attend the meeting at Bedison on Sunday evening.

MORPHINE STOLEN AT CORNING AND MARYVILLE.

The thief who stole morphine or other "dope" from the office of five different Clarinda physicians evidently is in the business, for similar stories come from Corning and Maryville. In Maryville, the thief entered the office of Dr. H. S. Dowell, taking 100 cocaine and 100 morphine tablets during the noon hour, while the doctor was at lunch.—Clarinda Herald.

Earl Dalby of Hopkins was in Maryville on business yesterday.

Jefferson City, Sept. 9.—The September crop report to be issued here tomorrow by E. A. Longan and Jewell Mayes of the Missouri co-operative crop reporting service will place the Missouri corn crop at 195,665,000 bushels on an acreage of 6,153,000, compared to 198,880,000 bushels and 6,215,000 acres for 1920. FREE CHAUTAUQUA AT PARNELL A SUCCESS

Parnell Went Over the Top and Is Assured of Another Chautauqua.

The big Free Chautauqua held at Parnell last week was considered a grand success by all that attended. The talent was furnished by Redpath Vawter in their Evening Star program, and every one who attended was highly pleased with every number. People from many surrounding towns came in great numbers and the tent would not hold the crowd any night. The talent that appeared upon the program was of the highest class. Wednesday evening The Althea Players, a company of five charming ladies, rendered a very pleasing program. Thursday Eugene Knox, a very clever impersonator pleased a large audience. Friday The New York Glee Club entertained a full tent to an evening of song and music. On Saturday that great comedy, "A Pair of Sixes," was played to the largest crowd that Parnell has seen for some time and it was estimated that fully 1,500 people witnessed this play given by six very clever players. On Sunday afternoon Hon. W. E. Wenner gave his great inspiring lecture on "The Hand at the Nation's Throat," and in the evening he gave a very pleasing address on the subject, "Giving Jack a Square Chance." His lecture was highly appreciated, as was all the numbers on the program. Over one hundred and five signers were secured to finance a chautauqua for Parnell for next year. While some of the neighboring towns have been jeering at Parnell with its new idea of a Free Chautauqua, we have learned that many of those towns have failed financially, while Parnell went over the top this year and is assured of another chautauqua for next year. Hurrah for Parnell!

CONCEPTION BATTERS GAIN ONLY 2 HITS OFF HUBBLE

Wilcox Wins 11 to 2—Slats Shrader Hits Long Three Bagger—Wilcox at B. J. Sunday.

Conception couldn't connect with Hubbles deliveries yesterday at Conception and consequently Wilcox won 11 to 2. The speed and hop that the Wilcox pitcher put on the ball completely fooled the home team and they made only two hits in the nine frames.

The longest hit of the game was made in the seventh, when Slats Shrader, a Barnard player on the Wilcox line-up, hit a three bagger out into center field. The bases were unoccupied at the time.

Bails, the Conception pitcher, allowed 18 hits. Corlis caught for Conception. The deliveries of Hubble, for Wilcox, were received by Tobin. "Big Bill" Richards was umpire.

Wilcox plays Burlington Junction at Burlington Junction Sunday for a purse of $50 and the gate receipts.
